DREAM SYMBOLISM TEXT OF REV. ISAAC

"Modern science teaches," said Rev. E. Morgan Isaac in opening his lecture on "The Symbolisms in Dreams and Their Meaning," in the Congregational church last Wednesday evening, "that there is nothing in mind which is not important, whether we are awake or asleep. Its eternal activities mean something of very definite significance. Volumes are being written on this subject today, principally by leading medical men who have been baffled when treating diseases with medicines. Now they ask, 'Why was this condition?'"

"Psychists say a dream is the fulfillment of a wish and is a protection to the sleeper. The manifest content of a dream is the part you remember and the latent content, with its ideals, inventions, etc., comes out of the unconscious, a great unknown infinite that seems to be one with the Infinite Mind."

Several striking symbolic dreams which have been recorded in scientific books were then related by the speaker, with the interpretations given them which were evidenced by facts in the lives of dreamers. "Dream investigators," he said, "are things that take place when you are awake. To interpret the dream, questions must be asked of the person who dreams. A real, infinite meaning can be found by analyzing the dream. All witticisms, puns, etc., are born in the subconsciousness. All the ideals of our lives are hidden away in that great unknown within us. We should never miss an opportunity to read everything possible about the mind. It is an intensely interesting study and one whose value is becoming widely appreciated. Psychoanalysts began to take it up seriously in 1900; now the great universities of the world are studying it. Read the works of Foster, Frye and other great metaphysicians."

MRS. KOEN DEMONSTRATES.
Preceding the lecture in the Congregational church last Wednesday evening, Mrs. Essie D. Koen, a teacher in the Eagle Rock schools, gave the first of a series of four lectures on correct breathing, using exercises taken from a scientific course. She will continue them each Wednesday evening, as her contribution to the health of the community, for there is no charge.

DR. ALLISON SPEAKS.
At the prayer meeting in the Presbyterian church last Wednesday evening the subject of "Christian Internationalism," which has been continued for several weeks, was concluded. One of the enlightening speakers was Dr. W. T. Allison, who has been working in the missionary field in Guatemala and is now here on a furlough, and acting as assistant professor of Spanish in Occidental college.

VISITATION GIVES NEW CENSUS

St. Clair felt confident that sufficient workers could be obtained to push the work.

District No. 2 at the Holy Family Catholic church. Randolph Doll was chairman of this district. Some 20 assignments were handed.

District No. 3, with headquarters at Pacific Avenue Methodist church. They handled 36 assignments and went "over the top." George J. McLaughlin lived up to his old-time speed and when the committee to get the results of the campaign arrived, everything was completed.

District No. 4 had headquarters at Central Christian church and assignments were distributed by Arthur Fale, district chairman. Thirty-two assignments were handed out to double that number of willing workers. They were absolutely "over the top" by 2 o'clock. Every canvasser was willing and energetic. Cooperation is responsible for such a great success, according to Mr. Fale. A local apartment house owner furnished Mr. Fale with complete data relative to his tenants and this aided the canvassers in the work. Even after assignments had been made there were others who expressed their willingness to go to other precincts and work.

District No. 5 had its headquarters at the First Presbyterian church. When the committee arrived to get a final report, all of their 24 assignments had been completed and it took Roy D. King, chairman, just ten minutes to get his workers on their way. Not an envelope was left.

District No. 6, with headquarters at the Congregational church, W. B. Kirk chairman. There were 23 assignments given out and only three envelopes left, so when the workers returned they made it known that they were willing to double up on the territory and finish the good work.

District No. 7 had headquarters at the First Baptist church, with W. A. Horn as chairman. Thirty-two assignments were given and only one envelope left, which was later taken care of.

District No. 8 had its headquarters at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church, which Rev. J. C. Livingston as chairman. There were 18 assignments given out and the entire district was covered with the exception of the territory bordering the Burbank line. The workers in this district were particularly pleased to note that in addition to the specified instructions contained in each envelope, they were easily enabled to locate all the streets, as a separate map.

You can never be a great man so long as you associate exclusively with small men.

BATTERY IS VITAL SPOT OF CAR

"The battery is the mainspring of your car," said Mr. Roll of the Peasner-Doll Auto Electric company, corner Chestnut and Brand, today. "It is the one feature on which satisfactory operation of the machine is dependent. This being true, it is absolutely necessary that the motorist give his battery the careful attention it deserves and demands. If this care is not given, the battery will result."

The average motorist does not know how to take care of his battery. We realize this fact from experience. We are battery men, and through years of experience have learned the proper treatment for the battery. Our work consists, first of all, of dispensing the famous Philadelphia battery. In addition, we recharge and repair batteries of all makes, repair generators, starters, ignition and lighting systems, etc. In other words, we are equipped to take efficient and satisfactory care of every electrical part of the automobile, no matter what battery or ignition system is used. No job is too small for us and no job is too large. If for any reason our work is not satisfactory, we will make it so—with a smile.

THE CAMPBELLS ENTERTAIN AT DAINTY BIRTHDAY PARTY
Mr. and Mrs. Willard R. Campbell, of 623 East Chestnut street, entertained Friday afternoon at a dainty birthday party in honor of their son, Willard Russell Campbell, who celebrated his first birthday.

Pink baskets filled with pink flowers and greenery decorated the pretty home and in the center of the dining table stood a pink and white birthday cake with one candle burning on top. This candle was kept burning all day. The birthday cake was made by Master Willard's grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Carlander.

As the little tots were too small to play games, a clever novelty was given each guest which they received by pulling a pink ribbon from beneath the birthday cake, and each received a prize. The refreshments consisted of ice cream and cakes.

The guests were Jane Richardson, Wayne Thomas, Perry Conner and Lillian Springfield, who also celebrated her first birthday, all of Glendale; Frank Bleitz of Hollywood, Alex Parker, Phillip Horney, both of Long Beach, all of whom were accompanied by their mothers, and Mrs. Florschutz.

Master Willard received many pretty and useful gifts.

MRS. HOUDYSHEL IS MRS. WEBSTER'S GUEST

Mrs. Priscilla Houdyschel of Orange street, this city, who is past department chairman of the Women's Relief corps, was a guest at a luncheon given Friday for past department officers by Mrs. Joseph Webster at her home on West Seventeenth street, Los Angeles.

Covers were laid for 20 and the table was smartly appointed, the place cards being tulips fashioned of yellow crepe paper which concealed a little mirror. As the guests inspected them to determine their locations they saw their own reflections and discovered they were to choose their own seats.

An informal social afternoon followed the luncheon during which plans were made for the department convention, to be held at Riverside on May 2.

The only program numbers were some piano selections played by the daughter of the hostess.

THE FIFES ENTERTAIN Y. M. C. A. GROUP

The Y. M. C. A. group, which is under the leadership of W. G. Boyd was entertained Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Pife, 517 North Jackson street. Lisle McAllister, president of the group, conducted the meeting, and there was an address by A. W. Tower whose theme was "Human Machines and Their Care."

Secretary Rex Kelley also made a general talk on Y. M. C. A. work and principles, and invited the group to join in a hike to Santa Monica and around the Palisades, which was to be taken this morning, leaving Glendale at 8 o'clock.

Following the talks, games were played and refreshments of sandwiches were served by the hostess.

MISS MOTTERN TO RETURN IN MAY

Miss Elizabeth Mottern, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Mottern, who has been studying music in New York for several months, will be home the 22nd of May. She is a soloist in one of the Episcopal cathedrals of New York and is exceedingly busy practicing sacred music, which she writes is very heavy. She is enjoying it greatly, however. She and two of her teachers were luncheon guests of Olga Steeb at one of the New York hotels just before Miss Steeb left for the west.

FOOTHILL CLUB GUESTS OF MRS. CUTLER

Beautiful Living and Dining Rooms Decorated With Flowers

The members of the Foothill club were very delightfully entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. C. Cutler, 1327 North Louise street. The beautiful living and dining rooms were decorated with pretty spring flowers and fern, and the main feature of the afternoon was an interesting talk by John Cotton, artist, famous for his color etchings.

Mr. Cotton spoke of Arthur Duerre, the French artist, and told of his work. He also told of the work of Rembrandt, who was probably the greatest etcher of all time. Mr. Cotton was the originator of the colored etchings and exhibited some of his work at the San Francisco exposition for the first time, and received a prize there.

He related some of his incidents while in France for two years, and told of how he was instructed to teach the American soldiers art while waiting to serve. He could not find any material with which to teach, so called upon the widow of the late Le Pierre, famous French etcher, and asked to be allowed to buy his instruments, but she refused to sell them to any individual. However, she was willing to allow their use for the American soldiers. But she again refused to sell them to Mr. Cotton afterwards.

The afternoon was an informal one and most interesting to all. About 4:30 dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

VAN DEN BERG TO GIVE PROGRAM OF CLUB

Unexpected Pleasure Is Possible to Tuesday Afternoon Club

Mrs. Charles E. Hutchinson, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, announces that she has been informed that Mrs. Farwell Edson, who was to have been the speaker before the club next Tuesday, has been called north and will, therefore, not be present.

Instead, a program will be given by our distinguished townsman, Brahman van den Berg. This great and unexpected treat by a pianist of world renown should bring out a big audience. It is the regular open forum meeting of the club to which the public is welcome, and guest cards will not be required.

Mrs. G. A. Blesch of Menominee, Mich., founder of a boys' club which has become famous, will speak briefly of its activities.

MEXICAN WORKMAN WHOSE SCULPTURE HAS ATTRACTED ATTENTION OF ARTISTS

Jose Gomez, a Mexican workman in the colony near La Habra, Calif., has attracted the attention of the leading artists of the southwest by his work as a sculptor. The incomplete figure is to be placed in a magnificent Catholic church soon to be erected in Los Angeles.

MRS. HUTCHINSON REPORTS ON FEDERATION

Finds All Women's Clubs Are Building Homes for Organizations

Highly enthusiastic are all the Glendale delegates who have been attending the convention of the federation of women's clubs at Santa Monica.

Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, president of the Tuesday Afternoon club, found exceedingly interesting the reports of the work of other clubs, and was surprised to learn the large number that are building clubhouses.

"Peace was the keynote of the convention," she says, and was embodied in the resolutions adopted. One of the outstanding addresses, in her opinion, was made by Dr. Willie Martin of Hollywood, who declared we are becoming careless law-breakers and must lay the foundation of obedience to law and order before we can consistently promote a peace program. If the laws are bad they should be taken off the statute books, but while they are in force they should be obeyed.

The picture drawn of the disarmament conference at Washington by Mrs. Robert Burdett also greatly impressed Mrs. Hutchinson.

Husband of Carnegie Heiress $2,000 a Year College Instructor

Roswell Miller, who married Margaret Carnegie, daughter of the late Andrew Carnegie and heiress to the steel master's millions, is aiming to satisfy a long-cherished ambition by working as an instructor in engineering at New York university for approximately $2,000 a year. In deciding to follow the science he chose when a boy, Mr. Miller, now 27 years old, turned down offers which promised him high places both in the world of industry and finance.

HI SCHOOL CABINET ENTERTAINS METHODISTS

Fifty Guests Test Efficiency of Students of School

Friday evening members of the cabinet of Glendale High were entertained with a banquet by the high school department of the First Methodist church, of which Fred Peck is president.

Principal and Mrs. George U. Moyses were guests, also Rev. Carl C. Seitter, director of religious education.

Covers were laid for about 50, the guests of honor being Lucy Strother, president of the student body of Glendale high; Dorothy Peart, secretary; Fern Peters, vice president; Victor Colburn, treasurer; Paul Holland, secretary of assemblies; Wilford Cline, secretary of boys' athletics; Walter Sullivan, secretary of publications. Mrs. Rebecca McKee had charge of the affair and Fred Peck was toastmaster.

Service and education were the themes of the speeches that followed the dinner, nearly all the officers responding to call. The chief speech was made by Mr. Seitter.

During the war he served first in the ambulance corps and later as an ensign in the navy.

HOWE BENEFIT FOR BANKS POST NETS GOOD PROFIT

While all the returns have not been turned in to the committee, it is apparent that the receipts of the benefit given N. P. Banks post and corps at the Glendale theatre Friday through the courtesy of William A. Howe, manager, will bring a net sum of $350 to $400 to the treasury of those allied organizations, and be a great help in carrying out the plans for the enlargement and improvement of G. A. R. hall.

Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshel, treasurer of the corps, who was active in promoting the success of the benefit, has requested the publication of the following card of thanks:

"On behalf of N. P. Banks post, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief corps, I wish to extend thanks, first of all to Manager William A. Howe for so graciously arranging for the benefit given at his theatre March 31 for these organizations. I wish also to thank the public for patronage, to thank the press of Glendale for publicity, to thank Mr. Cowan for printing the tickets, and to thank all members who sold tickets or contributed in any way to the success of the enterprise. Mrs. Priscilla Houdyshel, Committee Chairman and Treas."

"MY CHOO-CHOO'S BOUND FOR ALABAMA!"

Typical of the Roosevelt characteristic of virility, young Quentin Roosevelt, son of the assistant secretary of war, and grandson of the late Theodore Roosevelt, former President, here shows you that he's a "regular" boy. He takes great delight in his locomotive and is shown here giving his rolling stock the "once over." Does he resemble Teddy?

COUNTRY CALL IS HEARD THROUGH CALIFORNIA

All Machines Are Headed for the Open This Week

Every week this spring will be "see the country" week for motorists, say officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Unusual activity is scheduled for April, May and June in touring circles throughout the southern part of the state, it is reported with the greatest influx of motoring visitors ever recorded.

Impetus is given the touring movement out here by the plans for a huge caravan to move across the country to the reality convention on the coast, as well as several large parties of tourists coming across the continent by motor, en masse.

Touring parties of from 20 to 30 cars, moving as a single body across the transcontinental highways, just as the pioneers did in '49, is becoming a common sight, says the Auto Club touring bureau. It is a revival of the days of '49 in a deluxe manner. Where at one time it took a year to cross the prairies to California by pack train and prairie schooner, motor caravans are now making the trip in 21 days without the hardships suffered by the early pioneers.

Public camp grounds along the way, with all modern conveniences have been put at the disposal of the westward moving trains of motor cars, which helps to make the trip a delight. Despite erroneous rumors set adrift in the east that the tour to California is beset with hardships, motorists are trekking to the coast in numbers greater than ever before, reports the club.

DORT CAR HITS PUBLIC JUST RIGHT

Reports from all over the country indicate that the Dort car is proving a bit hit with the automobile dealers and the public, and this great popularity seems to be due to the fact that the Dort is giving universal satisfaction, even where it has been put to the most severe tests. E. E. Sawyer, of the Sunset Motor company, Glendale agents for the Dort, is well pleased with the business being done by the local agency.

"People who want the best car for the money are investigating the Dort, and are invariably buying it," said Mr. Sawyer. "We would esteem it a great privilege to show the Dort to any one whether they intend to buy or not," continued this popular garage man.

Reports from the Dort factory show daily increasing production due to a strong and well-sustained demand for the product. The popularity of the first Dort dates back to the New York show, where the public was given the first glimpse of the new cars. The sales record established at the New York show has been virtually duplicated at subsequent shows as the good news spreads.

Especially is the increase noticeable in the closed models and the factory production records now indicate about a 50-50 break between open and closed jobs, which is a rather new feature. This trend toward the closed car is due to two things: the new low price level represented by model 19-T sedan and 14-T coupe, which give the public closed car advantages at but little more than open car cost and the additional factor that is represented by the many refinements and additional mechanical features which prevail throughout the line, according to Mr. Sawyer.

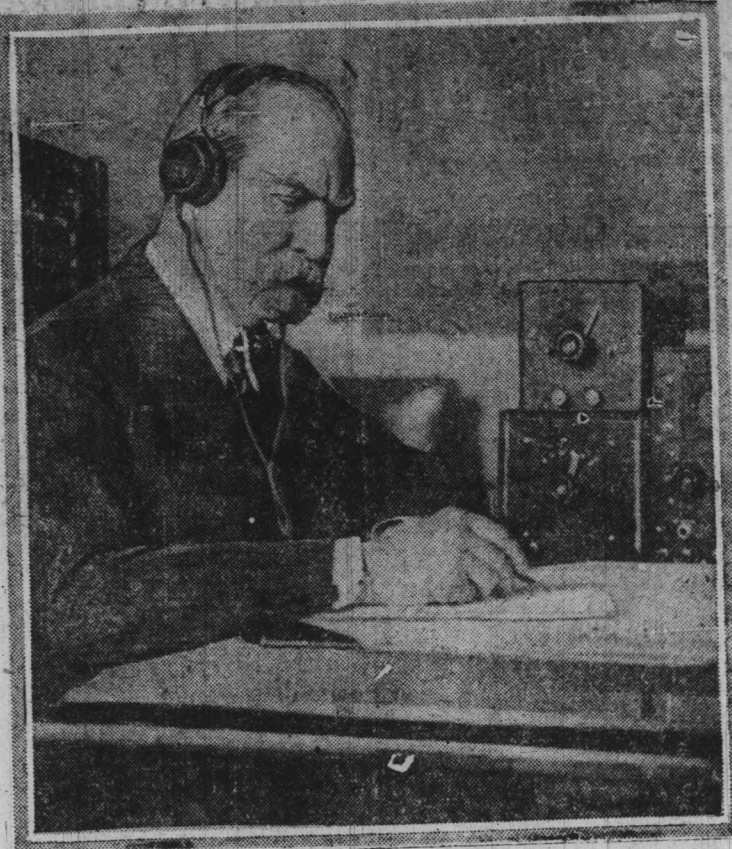

FAIRVIEW SEVENTH UNIT CLOSES AND EIGHTH OPENS

The seventh unit of Fairview, the subdivision that is attracting so much attention, has been completely sold out and the eighth unit is about one-half disposed of, according to Hamlin & Hepburn, selling agents, of 203 West Broadway.

Fairview is without doubt the fastest growing subdivision in Glendale. From the moment the first unit was placed on the market there has been something doing every day in the way of lot selling. The people have flocked out this tract during rain or sunshine, active season or dull season. They could see at a glance that the values offered in this tract are unusual, the lots were sold on very easy terms, and everything was done to make it to the interest of prospective home owners to buy and build.

There is probably no real estate firm in Glendale that has done so much toward the upbuilding of the northwest section of the city as has that of Hamlin & Hepburn. They went in that section when it was nothing but a barley field with a cabbage patch located here and there. It is now the fastest growing locality in the entire valley. About 80 homes have already been constructed and many more are in the course of erection, with a large number contemplated. The eighth unit of this tract is located one block from the Pacific Electric line and close to the Grand View school, stores, churches, etc. This is one of the wonder tracts of Glendale.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

THE BABY'S HOME COMING
By M. JESSIE LEITCH

The woman who had seven children met the woman who had only one at the door of the dingy tenement in which they lived when she came home from the hospital with the new baby in her arms.

"I don't know where the baby will sleep," said the young mother, who held the baby awkwardly and listened constantly to be sure that it was breathing. She was very nervous.

"We'll soon fix him a bed. I've an old clothes basket that will be the very thing," said the other woman, briskly taking the bundle of white flannel from the worried young mother and leading the way along the hall.

There was little money to spend, even on life's barest needs, in the dingy tenement, but the woman who had seven children and loved them all alike gathered her neighbor's new baby to her heart and said:

"This Tenement Home Well Alred. 'Don't you be worrying about where he'll sleep. A clothes basket or a bamboo cradle or an apple box or a basket does it matter? As long as it's clean and comfortable and not placed in a draught 'twill make little difference."

"The windows in the hospital were always open," said the young mother. "Down from the top, you know. I always thought that little babies caught cold when the windows were open, but they told me there that the more air we got the less likely he was to catch cold."

"It's all the latest treatment they give you in the hospital," agreed the mother of seven, "and I am a firm believer in open windows and fresh air."

And as she spoke her glance traveled with pride over the shining kitchen in which they sat. The outlook was dingy enough, but the windows were sparklingly clean, the coarse curtains well washed and tied back so that the maximum of fresh air and sunlight filtering across the houseposts might enter. A glimpse of a snow-white bed beyond a red cotton curtain told that cleanliness in this home was an established fact.

How Baby's Bed Was Made The sleeping baby was placed on the bed. The motherly woman produced an ancient clothes basket and promptly leaned a pillow, which she placed in the bottom of the basket. A couple of thicknesses of newspaper, folded between well-washed pieces of old blanket, followed. An improvised pad of soft blanket, folded, followed, and then a little sheet, which had done duty for most of the seven.

The motherly woman then said that it had been her experience that new babies slept better without a pillow, and proceeded to put the still sleeping baby to bed in his clothes-basket cot.

He simply snuggled into it and slept on, the while he two women bent over him tucking in the pink woolly shawl that was his only covering.

Sunshine, Fresh Air and Sleep "He wears his nightgowns all day long. I didn't need those little fancy dresses I made for him," confided the young mother.

"And the little loose nightgowns are far better than the frilly dresses," said the mother of seven as she sat about making tea.

"Our mothers would have been saved a deal of trouble in their time if they had known how few clothes new babies need and how much sleep and sunshine and fresh air they must have," she added, thinking of her seven who had been "brought up on sunlight and fresh air and sleep," as she was wont to say.

Listening in on Eve

HER INEXPENSIVE LUXURY

"Wouldn't it be nice," began the girl who liked to talk, "if we could change our names every season? Choose awfully odd and attractive names, you know, sort of novelty."

"How do you mean, change our names?" asked her matter-of-fact friend. "It would make a lot of confusion."

"Oh, that's nothing. I was just thinking how much more interesting it would be. For instance, Jim may get tired of me as plain Maude Jones, but if I could be Rosemary or Daffodil or something next year it might perk up his interest. You see, he'd sort of expect me to be different with a name like that and even though it didn't change me a bit in reality, I dare say I should acquire a new set of manners to go with it, and thereby a sort of glamour of unexpectedness. He'd enjoy calling me by some such name as that. I know he would. You see, it was clothes made me think of it."

"Yes, I see," murmured her friend. "How do you mean, change?"

"Why, don't you know nowadays they change the name of things, even colors, to make them more attractive? That's what I mean."

"Two years ago when a woman set out to buy a brown suit she asked for brown and got it. Last year, however, she probably asked for hearse or beaver, which made for hearse or beaver. And this year, even if she doesn't intend buying a suit at all, she can't resist shopping some in order to find out what the names of colors mean. Instead of advertising blue and green and brown and purple, the stores nowadays proclaim the color of dresses that are colored rust and Chippendale and dried juniper, malay and Nanking, radium, moose and elk, partridge, musketeer and—"

"Good gracious!" interrupted her friend. "There's nothing remarkable about that. Those names are all just stylish titles for different shades of standard colors. Everybody knows that!"

"Of course, but everybody doesn't know what colors! Can you tell me what Chippendale is? Or juniper? You can guess, of course, but you don't know. And you can't deny that a juniper crepe de chine sounds lots more attractive than a blue or green one. The name's the thing."

"It works the same with food. Wouldn't you rather order a Cream Walnut College Ice than a 'Chocolate Sundae'? It has a much more intriguing sound. And you know perfectly well you'd rather take lunch at a place called 'The Brass Kettle' or 'The Wedgewood Cup' than at Smith's restaurant, even though you know in your heart of hearts that the food is not as good and the prices are much worse."

"If I could have my way I'd rename about half the towns and streets in this country, call them nice cozy names that don't appear to mean anything, and I'd have everybody name three houses. I'm sure it would increase civic pride a lot."

"But what I set out to say was that people ought to be privileged to change their names as often as they grow tired of them. If you be Sheraton run down and discouraged with being Mildred Brown don't you suppose it would make you feel like a new person to begin over again as Gwendolyn Altimor or something? I know it would!"

"Well, of course, it can't be done, exactly, but we'd all be better off if it could. Anyhow, I've decided to call my old clothes new names, so long as I can't have new ones. My old coat's going to be Sheraton. Instead of brown, and I'm thinking of calling my plaid the silk MacDonald, and that old red evening dress vampire. It'll make them seem different."

"There may be nothing substantial in names, but you can't deny that there are fashions in 'em, anyway!"

From the cat's point of view, a saucer of cream is the lap of luxury.

NATIONAL REAL ESTATE BOARDS CONVENTION

Hundreds of Realtors to Assemble at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—That hundreds of realtors throughout the country will make the coming convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards the occasion of a vacation in California is evidenced in reports received at the convention headquarters here. Special trains, motor caravans and steamer parties are being organized preliminary to the great migration westward in time for the opening of the convention May 30th.

Extensive preparations have been made by the San Francisco Real Estate board with the co-operation of the boards throughout California to provide entertainment for every moment of the stay of the visiting realtors, not occupied by the serious work of the convention. From the time the delegates cross the California line they will be made to feel the warmth of California hospitality through welcomes of the various communities enroute.

The program of entertainment is brief and as follows: May 28—For those visitors taking the southern route, Los Angeles will form a motor caravan to convey the realtors up through California's wonderful valleys to the convention city.

May 30—Informal reception to convention visitors in the Palm Court of the Palace Hotel.

June 2—Steamer trip around San Francisco Bay and through the Golden Gate. In the evening a dinner to the officers of the National Association, followed at nine o'clock with a colorful Oriental pageant for all visitors.

June 3—Motor trip through San Francisco suburbs and Santa Clara valley—the Valley of Blossoms.

June 4—Motor trip to Del Monte, four hours ride from San Francisco, over splendid state highways.

June 5 and 6—Post convention golf tournament at Del Monte and award of the San Francisco perpetual challenge trophy; barbecue and sight-seeing trips through Monterey and adjoining country.

AUTO CLUB HITS TRAIL OF MOTOR MASHERS

Calls on Members to Report Owners Who Annoy Women

Terrified by attentions forced on them while driving on Southern California boulevards, scores of women operators of automobiles have appealed to the Automobile Club of Southern California for protection.

A reign of terror threatens to exist on the highways of the southern part of the state for women who motor alone, driving their own cars, according to testimony submitted to the auto club.

The husband of one motorist asserts that at various times when his wife attempts to drive on the less crowded thoroughfares she is harassed by men who crowd her car into the curb or follow her for blocks seeking to force their attentions upon her.

Others state that "pests" in motor cars are patrolling the highways for the single purpose of annoying women who find it necessary to drive alone between various Southern California cities. In some instances the "pests" are so persistent that women have had to seek sanctuary in convenient garages.

In order to aid in putting a stop to this sort of thing on the roads

HOME OF THE CIZEK AUTO ELECTRIC COMPANY

CORRECT COSTUME DESIGNING TO BE TAUGHT

Miss Northrup of Columbia to Teach at the University

The state university summer session in Los Angeles is offering a course that will undoubtedly hold a special appeal for feminine students. It is to be given by Miss Belle Northrup of Columbia University. Among the many subjects to be discussed by Miss Northrup, those having to do with the processes of construction necessary for dresses, coats, and suits, and practice in the adaptation of commercial patterns to the latest materials will be particularly popular. The application of principles of line and color to costumes for individual types and characters, the designing of accessories and decorative fabric, and special color work are also to be studied. Historic fashion books, libraries, museums, and nature are used for reference and inspiration.

Because of the many students interested in a course of such practicality, the class will be for those who have had some experience along these lines, or who show special adaptability.

Mrs. Hazel Murphy-Smith, representing Dean B. M. Woods in the Los Angeles office, 831 Pacific Finance building, is already receiving eager inquiries concerning the Costume Design course.

THIRD PARTY ORGANIZE. WASHINGTON, April 1.—A powerful third party—purporting to represent 23,000,000 workers and 10,000,000 farmers in the United States—entered the national political arena here today.

The definite decision to form the new party as the great coal strike begins is regarded here as most significant. The 500,000 miners, now quitting work throughout the country, have joined hands with the railroad workers and farmers to form the backbone of the new organization, Fred C. Howe, secretary of the national committee, told the United Press.

Whiskey straight is the cause—a crooked walk the effect.

Officials of the auto club have issued a broadcast plea to all motorists to observe the license numbers of such machines which are following or annoying women and to send these numbers at once to the legal department of the club, where the cases will be attended to.

"It is too bad if the roads are becoming unsafe for women operators of automobiles who find it necessary to tour alone," stated S. L. Mitchell, secretary of the auto club. "This organization, which has received numerous complaints to that effect, is going to do all in its power to curb such a nuisance, and the cooperation of the motoring public is seriously requested at once. Reports of such annoyances are received from all sections."

"There has never been a time in the history of our business when things looked better," said Mr. Kuhns of the E. W. Cizek Auto-electric company, corner Colorado and Brand; "we have heard some talk about business being a little slow, but so far as we are concerned we can truthfully say that everything is 'looking up.' Never have we been busier. Our motto is 'Through Service We Grow,' and we believe that the service we are giving is responsible for a large measure of our prosperity."

This firm is agent in Glendale for the celebrated threaded-rubber Willard battery, the power and endurance of which are daily demonstrated. This firm also handles all kinds of battery repairing. This firm believes that to be successful a repair man must know just how to handle the plates that hold the active material that keeps life in the battery. He has to know how to take care of the insulators that keep the plates apart. The firm does not confine itself to repairing the Willard, makes of all batteries being taken care of in this establishment.

So rapidly is the business of the Cizek Autoelectric company growing that it is believed that it is only a question of a short while until the present quarters of this concern will have to be enlarged. There is no inclination on the part of this firm to move from its present location, but that the enlargement of the quarters seems inevitable.

SPRING CHORTLES HEARD ON ALL HIGHWAYS

Local Auto Club Manager Says Glee Sways the Automobiles

Spring is here, and with the hip-hip-hooray of its coming also comes the word that it will be the greatest touring season ever known by Southern California.

Glendale according to M. B. Towman, manager of the local office of the Automobile Club of Southern California, is in the very heart of the south's motoring activity, being particularly fortunate in this respect.

With the signposting of the great transcontinental routes by the auto club, and the wide-spread knowledge of the fact that they are now signed, motorists in numbers never before considered, are planning to flock westward. The large number of letters received from eastern clubs and individuals requesting information on the trip to California show this.

To the observant resident of Glendale and vicinity it is noticeable that never before in history have the highways presented such a congested appearance as at the present time of year. If a passing freight train halts motor travel for a few moments at the crossing, motor cars are lined up for blocks.

Southern California has justly earned the title of "the greatest touring field in America," points out Mr. Towman. No other section of the country can compete with it, both in the mileage and scenic value of its roads, and in the touring service available.

The work of the Auto club in preparing for and actually receiving the guests from out of the states has been tremendous. More than 3,000,000 road maps have been printed and distributed by the club in preparation for the spring tours which are now coming into being. Thousands of personal calls, and calls by telephone have been received during the early part of the season in the Glendale office of the club relative to touring conditions in the vicinity.

It is a madly joyous caravan of travelers (which is moving westward at present across the continent to Southern California. Over the National Old Trails highway, the Lincoln highway and the great southern routes they are coming, filling the camp sites along the routes to capacity and making one large picnic out of the trip.

Practically every party of motorists arriving from the east stops in at the club office and makes a report of the trip, and in this way club officials learn of the actual mental attitude of those who finally motor into the state. They all testify that they are thrilled with the arrival here and with conditions on the transcontinental roads.

A very definite indication that Glendale is rapidly taking a vastly important role in the touring activity of Southern California is shown in the tremendous increase here in the number of telephone calls, personal calls for touring information and the distribution of maps by the local auto club offices. Never before has such activity been known, and it is increasing by leaps and bounds.

As a matter of fact, the camp site development in this part of the state for the accommodation of motoring parties who wish to spend

NEAR EAST RELIEF ORATORICAL CONTEST

Two Thousand Dollars May Be Won by High School Students

NEW YORK, April 1.—An announcement was made today by Near East Relief of a nation-wide essay or oration contest among high school students for prizes offered by the Hon. Henry Morgenthau, former United States ambassador to Turkey.

Mr. Morgenthau has offered $2,000 to be distributed among the prize-winners. These prizes, one of $500, one of $200, and one of $100, will be awarded the authors of the essay or oration adjudged to be the three best in the country. A first prize of $15, a second prize of $10, and a third prize of $5 will be awarded in each state.

According to an announcement which has been sent to school superintendents throughout the United States, contestants must read or deliver their essay or oration at a commencement exercise or other gathering. The topic selected must present some phase of the industrial, political, social, or educational situation in Turkey, Armenia, Georgia, Syria, Palestine, or other adjacent regions in which the American relief organization is operating. Only members of the two highest classes in high schools will be eligible.

The contest in Southern California will be conducted by F. L. Sims, state director, 517 Wright & Callender building, Los Angeles, to whom manuscripts must be submitted.

The winners in each state will be selected by a state committee. The national prize-winners will be selected from the state prize winners by a committee of judges consisting of Albert Shaw, editor of "American Review of Reviews," Lawrence Abbott, editor of "Outlook" and Prof. N. L. Engelhardt of Columbia University.

Plans for the contest have been made under the direction of the National Educational Committee of Near East Relief, of which Dr. John H. Finley, former New York state commissioner of education, and now with the New York Times, is chairman. Other members of this committee are Frank McMurry, professor of elementary education, Columbia University; William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dr. Chas. W. Elliot, president emeritus of Harvard University; Philander E. Claxton, former United States commissioner of education; President Harry Pratt Judson, of Chicago University; President Stanford Lyman Wilbur, of Leland Stanford University; President John H. T. Main, of Grinnell College, and President Henry Churchill King, of Oberlin College.

much of their time in the open has had a large share in the porting of the territory for motor travel. It is pointed out that in Southern California which have been thoughtful enough to provide public camp grounds, with proper comfort facilities, are announcing that the camps are already filled to overflowing and some concern is expressed as to where the thousands of motorists still pouring in are to be accommodated.

ITCHING ECZEMA DRIED RIGHT UP WITH SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Menthosulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Menthosulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.—Adv.

Truths in Epigram

It is as impossible for a man to be cheated by any one but himself, as for a thing to be and not to be at the same time.—Emerson 1803-1882.

The only faith that wears well and holds its color in all weathers, is that which is woven of conviction, and set with the sharp mordant of experience.—Lowell (1819-1891).

NO TREATY OPPOSITION

No senate opposition worth mentioning was offered the five-power treaty. To accept such unanimity as assured hardly was possible in advance of the formal vote. A situation in which Borah would agree with his colleagues, or by which La Follette would not be incited to fiery protest, was difficult to imagine.

The senators who declaimed against the four-power treaty said that it had nothing to do with disarmament. They declined to listen to Secretary Hughes who told them specifically that the ratification of the treaty first considered, was essential to the integrity of the second; that without the first, the second would be useless. Happily the necessary majority were led to agree with Mr. Hughes, even if some had been of different mind in the beginning.

Some of the opponents of the first treaty, declaring themselves in favor of disarmament, voted to ratify the second treaty. They do not admit, and do not seem to understand, that their original fight was directed as truly against the treaty they now sustain as against the one they tried to defeat. The two pacts belong together, complements, each serving a purpose, and each, in the absence of the other, incomplete and ineffective.

Senator France was the sole opponent of the five-power treaty, at the final test. The gentleman may have to go back to his beloved Russia to save himself from being too lonesome.

GERMANY'S FUTURE

Doubtless Germany is to have a future. That is to say, it is not believed to be in any danger of elimination as a national factor. What that future is to be, none seems wise enough to tell. There even is confusion as to the status of the country at this moment. This comes from the multiplicity of reports as to its activities and its intentions.

The fears of France that Germany is preparing for a war of revenge fails to find adherents outside of France. A country so completely under the military domination of its conquerors would be superhuman in its ingenuity were it, under the cloak of poverty, and while pleading inability to pay its debts, able to create and equip an effective army, or place a formidable fleet on the sea or in the air.

A late rumor is that Stinnes, greatest now of German capitalists, is building ships to compete for trade on the Pacific. It would be difficult to frame any objection. The waters of the earth are and should be free. If Germany is able to compete with the rivals it will find, its right to profit by this operation is not to be denied. If even it is to become relieved of the financial burdens weighing it down, it will be because its industrial life has not been squeezed out of it by the folly of the Prussian regime, or the severity of the prevailing conditions. Certainly it cannot meet demands unless it has money, and to get money, it must have the privilege of manufacture and sale.

PRESERVING BUILDING STANDARDS

"Domestic Engineering," a trade journal of high standing, calls attention to the effort in many cities to lower the building standard. It pleads for the maintenance of standards at least at the level of the present. It says that all the proposed modifications are in a downward direction, but that plausible reasons are being advanced in support of them. It holds that these reasons are formulated by people who are not practical builders, and who lack foresight. Without following the arguments of the journal in detail, it may be said that they are based on careful study of the various problems.

Cheapness is desirable in building. The man who pays for a house wants material and workmanship to be moderate in price. At the same time he wants good material and the best of workmanship. He may let a contractor to a contractor who underbids all competitors. The result is not satisfactory, for this type of contractor is bound to get his own profits out of the operation. He will get it even if necessary to use faulty lumber, slight the specifications and employ inferior mechanics. The owner who finds that his new house is flimsy, that the foundation is weak, the sills too slight, the floors shaky, the roof leaky, and the plaster cracking, often may ascribe all these conditions to the desire to build cheaply.

Public welfare, touching safety and health, demands that dwelling houses or large structures shall be properly built in every detail. Otherwise they may cause sickness, or failing to stand the stress of weather, collapse, or ultimately become firetraps. Nobody wants to live in a rickety home, or attend a show in a theater that is not sound in every joint and beam.

INTIMIDATING VOTERS

There was a woman candidate for mayor of Charlotte, Ia. She was defeated by an old-fashioned male opponent. Now she declares that the fight was won by "liquor and money." There is a familiar sound to this. It quite accords with the ordinary opinion of the candidate who fails to arrive. It is somewhat singular, however, that a little town in Iowa, a state that voted for prohibition long before the move became national, should be interested in liquor even remotely. It is an insinuation that Charlotte intends to throw its official weight against the latest constitutional amendment.

The mayor-elect denies the charges of the lady. He does it with the whole measure of heat compatible with courtesy. He says that liquor was not the issue at all, but that woman suffrage was the issue. According to his statement the young women of the place had uttered a bold challenge to the bachelors that they must support the women's candidate or that they need not come courting any more. Wasn't this an attempt at intimidation? Whatever it was, it seemed to lack efficacy. No young man desires to rest under a sweeping mandate that would bar him from companionship in swinging on the front gate in the evening. He resents being informed that he must go to the movie alone, if he wants to go. He is irked by the resolution of the village belle that she will pay for her own ice cream soda. But he can't be driven. Intimidation makes him mulish. He votes for life and liberty, even though cut off from pursuit of happiness.

The chances are, however, that in the village of Charlotte, courting will proceed in the usual manner, and the fair feminine voter forget the sting of defeat in the presence of an offer of marriage.

The wife of Roy Gardner, he being one of the more persistent and ingenious of thieves, is reported as being engaged in legal controversy over the film picture portraying the outlaw's career. This is important only in that it reveals the existence of such a picture. There never was any legitimate reason for creation of this film. Its display is entirely unwarrantable. It has no good purpose, and its effect, so far as effect follows, must be evil. Of course, the film was so directed in the making as to justify the thief in his course. The wife holds that her husband is insane and irresponsible. The public does not believe he is either. It holds the opinion also that if the wife's estimate is correct, Gardner as occupant of a secure penitentiary, has the environment best suited to his needs.

People who are not keen for a movie censorship, object to the production of propaganda on behalf of crime. They object to a dangerous rogue in the role of martyr or hero. Gardner has retired from public view, permanently, it is hoped, and the suggestion that his wife seems peculiarly adapted also to retire, although under conditions less rigorous, may be made with all propriety and kindness.

A resident of California just back from Russia advises all nations to keep out and away, and let the Russians work out their own problems. He thinks that interference, however well meant, would cause a belief there that capitalism was trying to crush the Russians, and this would afford a rallying cry by which the people oppressed by the soviets might be induced to support them. This man and his wife went to Russia as devoted bolsheviks. They could not agree with the brutal policies they found in force, and so were cast into prison. The wife died of the hardship. The husband escaped back to the United States. He did not return as a bolshevik.

Doctors are urged by distinguished members of their calling to make co-ordinated research of medical problems such as constituted of epidemics sweeping the continents. The suggestion is inspired by the periods when influenza has prevailed. In 1918-19 the fatalities resulting from this malady were appalling. In the present year they have been less numerous, but discomfort and disability has marked the course of the disease. And nobody seems to know either the cause or the cure.

GOVERNMENT BY THE AIR

By DR. FRANK CRANE

When the Wright brothers invented a flying machine heavier than air they began what may turn out to be the profoundest change in government.

For the fundamental business of government is policing. Its first duty is to keep the peace. And those who have control of the air will eventually have control of the earth.

This has been illustrated recently in Egypt. Here is a vast territory very sparsely settled which owes its prosperity and order to the presence of the British government. On account of the scattered population brigandage is easy and it is very difficult to move policemen as rapidly as the flying troops of robbers.

In 1919 a rising occurred in which railway and telegraph connections were cut and in which the isolation of the police garrisons was threatened. But utilizing airplanes, however, a complete network of aerial mail service was put in operation and ran successfully for several weeks. Airplanes after this continued to perform important service. They made continual patrols along the railway lines to locate damage and protect repair gangs, to escort trains, and prevent further destruction.

A similar protection was accorded the Suez canal. A flying officer of the Egyptian forces tells of an incident at Beni Suet, south of Cairo, where a number of British women with a handful of Indian soldiers were completely cut off and threatened by a horde of fanatical natives. Troops could only reach the spot by river and would have arrived too late. A flying boat was despatched and, having dispersed the mob with bombs, landed and supplied the Indians with sufficient Lewis guns and ammunition to hold out until relief arrived.

An amazing and bloodless victory was gained by a seaplane on a lake near the Damietta, at the mouth of the Nile. An attempt was made to interfere with the steamers running between Port Said and Damietta. The seaplane arrived and, spotting the crowd of native boats surrounding the steamers, alighted on the water and proceeded to taxi at full speed in their direction, firing red lights at will. The native boats fled in all directions. All this calls attention to the main point in disarmament.

We are never going to arrive at any kind of disarmament that will prevent war between nations until we cease to prepare nations to fight each other and until we reduce all armament to the point where it shall be useful only for keeping the peace within the nation.

In other words, armament should not be against other nations, but against breakers of the peace. The only sane purpose of arms is to maintain order.

And the only guaranty the world shall have of peace is when there is one order in the world and all the armed force is put under its control.

Perhaps, after all, it may be the new machine, the aircraft, which will bring about the new order, which is world government.

THE LISTENING POST

Protest?
Did you ever notice how many of our institutions and beliefs and cherished documents are of protest?

The advance of civilization has been a matter of protest.
In protesting against conditions and untruth we have made advances.

We live by protest.
If we assented and agreed and accepted doubtless we should die.

The strokes of the swimmer are protests.
Protests against drowning and death.
The swimmer protests against the mastery of an unfamiliar element.

That little candle that sheds its beams is a protest.
A protest against darkness.
There was a time when the only light was that of the moon by night.

Or of the camp or hearth fire.

Some one protested.
Protested with a bit of grease and a wick through it.
And we had light by night.

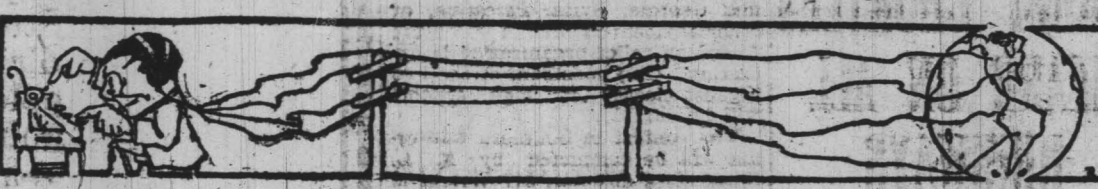

As a protest against darkness.
Had there been acceptance of the darkness we should have still remained in gloom after night-fall.

There was the selection of a cave for habitation.
A protest against elemental nature.
Against rain and wind and cold.

And the protesting cave grew to be a house and a home.
A protest against wandering and vagrancy and changing habitations.

Gradually there came education.
Schools and colleges and universities.
Protests against ignorance.

Had there been no protesting institutions and forces we should be still in ignorance.
And at last a kind of government.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Home—Dora Greenwell (1821-1882)

Two birds within one nest;
Two hearts within one breast;
Two spirits in one fair,
Firm league of love and prayer,
Together bound for aye, together blest.

An ear that waits to catch
A hand upon the latch;
A step that hastens its sweet rest to win;
A world of care without,
A world of strife shut out,
A world of love shut in.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Chicago authorities banished a theatrical show as obscene. It had had a long run in New York. The metropolis must be tougher than anybody supposed.

The doctor who says that beads should not be made up until night may be a good physician, but he's no housekeeper.

Efforts are being made to have the Los Angeles river stay in its channel, the fear being that it might wander away and get lost.

The Long Beach butcher who sleeps in his icebox is likely to get roasted. By his customers, of course.

Somebody exploded a bomb at a prohibition meeting that "Pussyfoot" Johnson was addressing. He never winked an eye. He thought he was being applauded.

Fifty-one have been killed by automobile accident in Los Angeles so far this year. And the year is young.

The warden of San Quentin will have sympathy in his demand for more pay. Think of the company he has to keep.

Before long the radiograph promises to be as common to American households as the almost forgotten whatnot used to be.

Charging men with crime and seeking a gold cure for damages involved, seems to be about the easiest thing the modern flapper knows how to do.

If Germany is to put ships into Pacific trade, they will be handicapped by such names as Tirpitz and Ludendorff.

Los Angeles wants an anti-vice fund. The vice fund seems to have been provided.

Both sides in Ireland deny a program of violence. It seems that the violence is an impromptu affair.

There are rumors of a plot to kill the bolshevik delegates on the way to Genoa. Well, of course; it is but a matter of time when they get what is coming.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE RUINED OCEAN
(New York Tribune)

Time was when the tired business man welcomed an ocean voyage as a rest. It was, in a sense, a holiday, far from all possible interruption by partners or associates, and free from the jangling calls of the telephone and the constant demands of a thousand visitors. Released from the tyrant time, he could breakfast or lunch at will, without ever looking at his watch except to set it each noon as the ship's chronometer was changed.

protest against savagery and the mere harding together of people in tribes and clans.

Even the cake of soap is a protest.
A protest against uncleanness and disease.
Had there been no protesting baths and ablutions we should have been pretty creatures indeed. But somebody protested.
Against a natural condition of uncleanness and unkemptness.

Morals are protests.
Protests against natural instincts and impulses and desires.
That unrestrained would work destruction.
So the moral system of people came as protests.

Then came fraternal and community organizations.
Which were protests against selfishness and unbrotherliness and hermitage.
Lodges and clubs and places where men and women may gather for the exchange of views and amenities for the common good are institutions of protest.

Columbus' voyage was a protest.
A protest against existing belief concerning the earth and its shape and waterways.
The Declaration of Independence was a protest.
Magna Charta was a protest.

The world has advanced by protesting.
By refusing to accept.
By declaring for change.
By establishing parties and institutions and beliefs.

Whenever there is a force that governs there is another force that exists as a protest.

Work is a protest.
A protest against idleness and sloth and decay.
Religion is a protest.
A protest against materialism.
And even sleep is that silent and dissolving protest that drives away weariness.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Explorer Amundsen, proposes to sail above the polar area in an airship. Thus he is to defy the crushing floe and the rampant iceberg. From a safe, if chilly coign of vantage, he will map the snowy wastes, and if he decries that which is not waste, will map it, too.

He will be thousands of miles away from civilization and yet in touch with it. By means of the radiograph civilization certainly is extending its sphere of influence.

To many the insatiable curiosity of science concerning the extent and character of the Arctic regions is a mystery. Enough is known already to assure that the extent is considerable, and unless for any present purpose, and that the character is austere.

However distant, as the poles are, they are much nearer than the nearest star. Science seeks to get on terms of intimacy with this star, and with others billions of miles beyond it. Science weighs and measures it, analyzes its atmosphere, calculates its orbit. Yet nobody expects to visit a star, at least not in the flesh. Nobody believes that he is to traverse vast spaces through which the heavenly bodies gleam down upon his puny personality.

Thirst after knowledge is as natural as any other thirst. Science is going to get all the knowledge possible, and set it down in books which students will pore over. Amundsen goes to the Arctic because it is the most distant objective. He would go star hunting just as readily were the means available.

John Pilgrim said on this very page that he could read character by the manner in which another person met his gaze. All he wanted to see was the eye. John is a good chap, very evidently, but he was mistaken, that's all.

The bunko business flourishes mainly because a rogue is able to look his victim squarely in the face and give the impression of honest profound and incorruptible.

Memory recalls a time when a lady correspondent from New Orleans reached Denver, where she met a lot of innocent reporters. She won the whole bunch. One by one she touched them for such money as they had about them. She seemed to scent the arrival of pay day, and each reporter gladly handed over his roll.

She did it all with her eyes, her limpid, appealing eyes, looking frankly into those of the dazzled reporter of the occasion. Honesty? Why, her optics radiated integrity, nobility, sweetness and trust.

Each time she bared her teeth on the circumference of having lost her purse. Very embarrassing, don't you know. Each reporter, being sucker enough to believe himself the budding journalist of her heart's desire, refrained from confiding in the others until the lady, doubtless with a wink of her lovely eyes, departed leaving no farewells.

John Pilgrim needn't try to fool any of that bunch with his theory of reading character as written on the window of the soul. Nothing in it.

The relationship of twins who are bound together by tissues that may not be divided is an intimacy not otherwise to be approached. There is nothing else to approximate it.

Recently such twins have been watched by doctors as they lay on the death bed of one, that in the very nature of things, must become the deathbed of the other.

There was a plan to try to separate the living from the dead the instant the first had been taken. The other twin would not permit it. She knew the chance of survival to be almost negligible, and anyway had no desire to live without her mate.

It is said of an eastern girl, who has deserted her rich and venerable husband that she spurns gold.

Don't believe it. It is the old man she spurns, and if all his gold gets away from her, he will have to step lively and take it with him.

It is estimated that a Chicago burglar, just captured had stolen $500,000 in a strenuous career of six years.

Possibly he has enough of it left to retain a rogue lawyer. Burglary may pay somebody, but not the chap who does it.

A robber who had escaped from San Quentin had the mischance to be retaken in this end of the state. As he was held in the county jail he was interviewed by a typical sob sister.

This meant, of course, that he was given a character for honesty and nobility, and elevated to the plane of heroism.

Henry Ford, being sued for $11,000,000 has at least the comfort of knowing that if judgment is rendered against him, he is in a position to settle the account on a cash basis.

According to a newspaper yarn that may be true, Harry Leon Wilson, popular author, challenged an artist to fistfights, and got soundly licked.

If the story is true the public will hope that Wilson has not had his charming sense of humor knocked out of him.

WATCHING THE PARADE

The only thing in the world the matter with Morton—so far as I know—is his unfortunate habit of gobbling his cereal at breakfast. Conditions have thrown me in Morton's company for the past three weeks. We have eaten our first meal together for twenty-one days. We have spent most of the days together. And I have grown to hate that man with an enduring and venomous hate.

"I think we'll put this deal through," he said this morning, tossing a spoonful of cereal his way as he said it. I think we will, too. I think it will be a profitable one for both of us. But I know that if I were not linked to him by an iron-hand and watertight agreement I would try to wriggle out. The thought of meeting him for breakfast at intervals for the next three years subjects my moral fibre to a stress it can barely sustain.

I know perfectly well that no one is at his best at breakfast. I know there have been moments in Mrs. Pilgrim's life when she has felt that only a battle axe and a free swing would save her sanity. And there have been times when, on viewing that lady in her breakfast wrapper, and on reflecting that, presumably being in my right mind, I voluntarily bound myself to the beholding of that vision each morning for a term of years, I felt like calling the sheriff and giving myself up. But these were only momentary lapses from the state of armed affection in which we usually dwell together, whereas Morton—

Pah! I shall not permit myself to think further of Morton. But I wonder how it happened that his parents did not drown him in a bucket as soon as they discovered that his table manners had become a permanency. Is it possible that parents do not realize that good manners are about the best legacy—outside of good morals, of course—that can be left to a child? Do they know that a boy who behaves at table as though he preferred a trough is seriously handicapped in his fight with life? It is difficult for the average man to make more than an average living, anyhow, and it is far more difficult if he shows a hideous unfamiliarity with fork, spoon and napkin.

Perhaps the parents did not know any better. But one cannot blame everything on a parent. The average young man ought to be able to learn something for himself.

WHAT A SNEEZE DID DO.

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Just one, little sneeze," The red dog shook his head sadly at the thought. "And see what it had done!"

"What did it do?" Dr. Muskrat reminded him. "You haven't told us yet. You said Mister Noah was having a quiet little party in the giraffe's stall, eavesdropping on the ravens, till he sent Ham to lock up the wicked birds. Then there was a racket from their-roost, and Ham came back looking as if the old owl had caught him."

"That's just what he did," agreed the dog. "Because Mister Noah sneezed, and then—well here's how he told what happened—soon as he felt better and the sorrowful giraffe had washed his face with her long, pointy tongue. (For drops of blood were oozing out of his kinky hair and trickling down). Oh, yes, and the captain had put a hay pillow under his head, and all the time stammering, 'What-wha-what's the matter, son?'"

"I dunno, Cap'n Dad. Not despecially. Ever'ing seem all right ontel you sneezed. Den—no more'n you open yo' haid dan de ravens knows we's listening. And no more'n I lay han' on dey door dan dey knows who we is. Dey takes atty me, beak and claw—leastwise I lunno is it one or is it de bofe o' dem, or is it a ghos' bird dat raven's voodoo wife done conjured up to do huh maulin'. Er dat's what ben sawtin' me wool dis-ways Iee fally past prayin'. He grooned again."

"Huh, I don't take any stock in that," his dad comforted him. "She can't voodoo very much if she's locked in."

"I dunno if she is or if she hear her squalling for that mate of hers to peck the lock loose from the door and take her along. But he isn't doing it."

"Nor was he. He was craning his ruffy neck in the giraffe's window, his black beard on end, his fierce eyes glaring, to croak, 'Oh, ye triflin' naygur, wid yer snakin' and yer crapin', take shame to yersef' for insultin' an honest burrd! Will ye be afther askin' me pardoon, or will ye step out on the deck and take the lave of the lambastin' ye deserve?'"

WATCHING THE BREAKING OF GROUND IN MAXWELL HOME

The foundation has been laid and the walls of the new home of the Glendale Motor Car company, at 124-26 West Colorado street, are rapidly moving skyward. This firm expects to take possession of its excellent new quarters about the first of May. This building will be strictly modern and will be arranged so as to best suit the needs of him. (And this time it wasn't a sneeze.)

"Honest! you say? Honest? You've said enough for one night. Just you show your beak round my craft again and I'll turn out the seagulls to pick you so clean folks'll take you for a frog. I'll—I'll—but before" he could think of anything bad enough to express his feelings he was shaking his fist at the air. The raven was gone.

NEXT STORY: MORE OF THE HAVEN'S LYING.

an up-to-date automobile concern. It will consist of brick, with pressed brick and plate glass front. The front section will be taken up by the sales department at the rear of which will be the repair and service section. A complete line of accessories will be carried at all times.

The Glendale Motor Car company has been in its temporary quarters for two months, during which time its business has steadily increased. In fact, sales have been better than was anticipated. The public, it is declared, is just beginning to realize what a wonderful car the new Maxwell is. They are accustomed to seeing the old style Maxwell, and it has taken them considerable time to get used to the new lines of the 1922 models. The new Maxwell has been improved both inside and out, and has many features that are found only in $3000 cars.

Lyman P. Clark, one of the members of this firm, has been with the Maxwell people for the past ten years, and Frederick W. Proctor, the other firm member, has also spent years with the Maxwell people. Both men are thoroughly familiar with the car they sell.

The Maxwell corporation, which these men represent, is one of the strongest automobile manufacturing companies, financially, in the country. This is revealed by the recent action of the executive committee in voting to anticipate by two months the maturity of series "A" Maxwell gold notes, amounting to $3,850,000. This entire issue, which is due June 1, 1922, will be retired on April 1, 1922.

Further strength of this company is evidenced by its condensed financial statement and by the fact that

"PEG O' MY HEART" AT THE RIALTO

"The Hottentot" merits all the praise which has been lavished on it by "case hardened" play critics, and its presentation by the Rialto stock company at the tent theatre last night would withstand the acid test of the most caustic reviewer.

As a dispeller of "the blues," it is matchless, and none of the usual laugh producing methods are employed, nor are they necessary. Just recently "The Hottentot" had a run of several weeks in Los Angeles, and was witnessed by many Glendale people, which undoubtedly aided in bringing out a very large audience, none of whom had just cause for regret. Tonight is the last time for "The Hottentot."

Tomorrow night, Sunday, the international play success, "Peg O' My Heart," and it is promised by the management the play and its production will linger happily in the minds of those who witness it for a long time to come.

Due to the unusual interest in "Peg O' My Heart," the management urges those who intend attending to try and be seated by curtain time, 8 o'clock sharp.

MINERAL PRODUCTION

The province of Ontario produced in 1921 minerals to the value of $54,505,770.

Wrath is usually found in family jars.

no bank loans are carried at the present time.

The advance made by the Maxwell, it is believed, may be regarded as an added evidence of the general return to normal conditions in the automobile industry, particularly in the case of those manufacturers who are in a position to accept every buying and manufacturing advantage thus enabling them to offer the utmost in motor car value.

THE CAVANAHS FIND WELCOME IN GLENDALE

Will Open Branch Vocal Studio in This City

Howard Edward Cavanah, tenor, and Mrs. Cavanah, mezzo-soprano, have opened a studio in Glendale and are equipped to teach singing in all its branches. The Glendale studio is located at 520 North Kenwood street, while the Los Angeles address is 342 Music-Arts Studio building, 233 South Broadway.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cavanah received their musical education in Paris, and are singers of note. They are capable of preparing students for operatic oratorio or for home accomplishments. Each of these musicians has done considerable concert work in the United States and abroad and are available for concerts and afternoon entertainments, both in solo and duet work.

CONCENTRATE FLEET.

TOKIO, April 1.—After carrying out the program of naval reduction provided by the Washington conference, Japan will concentrate its fleet on the coast of the Japanese mainland, according to apparently authentic reports today.

These reports followed a conference of field marshals and admirals held here to adopt a program for the navy meeting requirements of the Washington conference.

CHEVROLET AGENT PLANS ADEQUATE CAMPAIGN

C. L. Smith to Present Real Worth of Car in Glendale

C. L. Smith, who took over the agency for the Chevrolet in Los Angeles county a few days ago, says that he is preparing for big business and that from the way things have started out his expectations will surely be realized. Mr. Smith's temporary place of business is located at the Standard garage, at the rear of 400 E. East Broadway. This place will be occupied until the new home that will soon be erected on West Colorado street is completed.

Mr. Smith said this morning that 3190 Chevrolet cars were shipped out of the Oakland factory during the month of March, all of these going to points in California, Oregon and Washington. Over 2000 Chevrolet machines have been distributed in Los Angeles county since January 1, or within 90 days. This is "some business," and Mr. Smith believes that he will do even better than that during the second three months of 1922.

"The excellent qualities of the sturdy Chevrolet are becoming better known all the time," said Mr. Smith this morning, "and as a result a large number is being demanded as the weeks wear away."

TUJUNGA SCHOOL TRUSTEE IS ELECTED

Mrs. B. B. Reynolds Is Chosen to Serve for Three Years

TUJUNGA, April 1.—Mrs. B. B. Reynolds was elected school trustee, at the election yesterday by a vote of 80, to 31 for Mrs. Guy Barry. Trustees Yarik and Gardner of the Glendale high school board each received a unanimous vote, 111.

The vote was comparatively large for a school election and shows that Tujunga people are taking an active interest in school problems.

Mrs. Reynolds has been engaged in school work for some time as a member of the Parent-Teacher Association. She is well liked in the community and her interest in the school should make her a valuable and efficient trustee. Mrs. Reynolds was elected for a term of three years and takes the place of Wilmet Parcher, retiring president. The board now consists of Wallace M. Morgan, Jud Jenkins and Mrs. Reynolds.

Partial Fire Loss

Fire caused by the explosion of an oil cook stove partially destroyed the Sells home on Monte Vista near the corner of Sunset yesterday afternoon.

Miss Blanche Sells, who was in the house at the time, carried the blazing stove outside and helped to fight the flames. Extinguishers from the fire trailer probably saved the whole house from being consumed. A group of volunteers succeeded in checking the blaze and removed the furniture from the house.

Plans for the May festival planned for May 20 formed one of the principal items of business transacted by the Columbus avenue P. T. A. at yesterday afternoon's session, presided over by the president, Mrs. H. V. Henry.

Word was received today of the death in Fullerton of Mrs. David Fearing, nee Catherine Lord, formerly of this city. Mrs. Fearing is reported as having met her death through a gunshot wound.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

THE PUNISHMENT

When a mother spans her erring boy she does it not because She has an earthly grudge against the lad, But she does it just to teach him an obedience to the laws. She formulates to keep him from the bad.

When the slipper or the shingle whizzes swiftly through the air, When the tingle, tingle, tingle strikes his bosom with despair, And the bosom that is stricken isn't always found just where You'd expect, his mother says she's just as sad To spank him as the castigated lad, But she does it just to keep him from the bad.

JAMES W. FOLEY

When the castigation's over how she soothes his wailing cries

And tells him how she loved him all the while,

She smooths his rumpled garments and she dries his streaming eyes,

And coaxes him with sugar plums to smile.

"Oh, Willie, dear," she tells him, while the glistening teardrops start,

While Willie's pride is swelling and while Willie's feelings smart,

"Oh, Willie, you will surely break your loving mother's heart."

And thus she seeks his anguish to beguile,

And this the song she sings him all the while,

And now—when you recall the time—you smile.

And Willie dries his streaming eyes and says to her: "Boo-hoo!"

If it hurts you so to spank me what's the reason that you do?"

REVOLUTION SONS SEEK MANY NEW MEMBERS

President Pettingill Asks Press to Assist in Increasing Enrollment

"Eight hundred and five thousand foreigners immigrated to our United States during 1921," said Frank Hervey Pettingill, president of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of California, yesterday in a communication to the Glendale Daily Press.

"Forty-five per cent of the population of the United States is foreign born; 15 per cent of the population of the United States is of foreign parentage; only 30 per cent of the population of the New England states is descended from native stock, and in a great majority of the towns of New England the incoming element has submerged the native population to such an extent that it is no longer politically, agriculturally and industrially, if this appalling state of affairs exists in old New England what this presages for the future of this great republic of ours I leave for your most thoughtful reflection."

"It is my personal estimate that there are today in this country probably ten million men and women descended from patriots of the War for American Independence."

The society, Daughters of the American Revolution, enjoys a membership of about 125,000. The society, Sons of the American Revolution, has a membership of about 18,000. The Sons of the Revolution has a membership in excess of 8,000; added to these the societies, Daughters of the Revolution and the War of 1812 probably have a membership of several thousand.

There are also several societies in which membership is derived from ancestors who rendered patriotic service to the American colonies during the colonial period, chief of which is the Society of Colonial Wars having a membership in excess of 3500. This is a most lamentable showing when you take into consideration the ten million men and women eligible to membership in these purely American organizations.

"If this organization is to continue to carry on successfully the splendid work of patriotism and the achievement of America ideals it has set out to do, every member must promptly and seriously realize his patriotic responsibility not only to the society but to himself and to his country. The very least any member can do at the present time to promote the active work of the society, is to at once obtain a new member. If the society is to close the year 1922 with a membership of one thousand, 275 applications for membership must be secured between now and December 15, 1922."

"Whenever you hear a friend remark he is eligible for membership in the Sons of the Revolution, please insist that he immediately visit the headquarters of the society where the change will gladly do everything possible to accurately trace his genealogy to an ancestor who served in the War for American independence."

"The patriotic opportunities offered a society such as ours are too numerous and of too wide a range to enter into in detail."

"Much important patriotic work planned by your officers and committees is being held in abeyance owing to the lack of funds and the income that would accrue from new members would provide these necessary funds. Therefore, will you not very kindly pause long enough in your other activities to add one new member to our society?"

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

ROME, April 1.—The engagement of Princess Yolanda of Italy to Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium will be announced following the departure of the Belgian sovereigns this afternoon, according to the Messagero, which quotes "the highest official authority" for its statement.

The engagement was rumored when the visit of the king and queen of the Belgians to Italy was proposed. Previously Princess Yolanda has been mentioned as a possible bride for the prince of Wales. The Messagero said the king and queen of Italy would shortly visit Brussels.

HOWE'S LONDON CIRCUS DUE HERE FRIDAY

Wild Denizen of the Jungle in Circus

Flaming posters in all the colors of the rainbow throughout this section proclaim the fact that the world famed Howe's Great London Circus with Van Amberg's Trained Wild Animals, now a California enterprise, owned and managed by San Francisco capitalists, is to exhibit in Glendale, afternoon and evening, on Friday, April 7.

The press agent dropped in today and told us all about the show—how the owners have enlarged it in every department this season, which with the greatly augmented list of performers, feature acts, trained wild animal exhibits, "Cinderella in Jungland" spectacular extravaganza, all of which tend to make this "the world's wonder show" made it necessary to add more railroad cars to the trains required to transport the huge tents, ponderous wagons, cages, dens, chariots, tableau cars, elephants, camels, lions, tigers, leopards and other ferocious monarchs of the wild animal kingdom, not mentioning the horses, ponies, men and women.

He described to us many of the new features, among others are the pair of baby lions born in winter quarters at Palo Alto, on January 10, 1922; a baby monkey, arriving at about the same time and also with just claim to citizenship; "Mizpah," a white or Albino camel, heading the only troupe of camels who have been broke to perform; "Rubber," the giant elephant, largest of its kind; lions who ride horses and soar heavenward in balloons; Jules Jacot's group of forest-bred, fighting lions; Mlle. Le-Nova's mixed group of wild and domestic animals; Mlle. Falkenstorf's Cougars, Leopards and Paguars; Charles Fulton's peerless exhibition of horse acrobatics; "Maud," the only mule ever broken to do cake-walking; ball-room dancing horses; Casteel's educated dogs, monkeys and goats; not forgetting the clowns, an army of them, headed by Kenneth Waite, greatest of original performers.

All to be seen for 50 cents. We do not wonder at the kiddies being more considerate than just before Christmas. There's a reason!

sauntered on. Finally she stopped, apparently to look at the surroundings. The foreigners approached her. Mr. Russell did not wait for anything to happen. He closed in on them, and without a word of warning laid them both flat on the sidewalk.

The young woman properly recognized Mr. Russell's intervention and accepted his escort to her destination. The acquaintance thus begun had a most thrilling sequel. This may be seen at the Glendale theatre, where Mr. Russell is to open an engagement today in "The Lady From Longacre," which is a comedy-drama from the well-known novel by Victor Bridges.

Ivor Novello, who plays one of the leading roles in "Carnival," is the composer of the famous ballad of the late war, "Keep the Home Fires Burning."

"Carnival," the spectacular film production which United Artists recently released and in which Mr. Novello plays the leading juvenile role, will be the feature at the Glendale theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

ARREST RADICALS.

TOKIO, April 1.—A number of Indian radicals have been placed under arrest here for their activities in connection with the Indian agitation against Great Britain. It was considered probable they would be deported. The move was believed to have been a part of the preparation for the visit of the prince of Wales. Every precaution against untoward incidents during his visit is being taken.

AIRPLANE FALLS.

MACON, Ga., April 1.—Two men were dead and another is in a dying condition here today as the result of an airplane striking a high smokestack late yesterday. The dead are John R. Costa, Anthony, Kansas, and Ray Roundtree, Portland, Ore. W. L. Fisher of Mack, Colo., is not expected to live.

Lots of men go short on fiction because it is stranger than truth.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush your kidneys occasionally if you eat meat regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally. Says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Ad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.
